WHAT IS GRADEWATCH AND HOW WILL IT IMPROVE STUDENT ASSIGNMENT ACCOUNTABILITY?

PERSONALIZED DEVELOPMENT

Customized to meet your school's intervention & study hall needs

ASSIGNMENT TRACKING

Teachers use GradeWatch to quickly & easily input student assignments of interest: zeros, missing, failing, or of zero quality.

STUDENT IMPROVEMENT

Hold students accountable for missing or unacceptable work, easily updated once completed or intervention served.

PARENT PORTAL, EMAIL & TEXT

Parents can view their child's real-time reports online. Emails automatically sent informing parent of missing assignment. With certain cell phone carriers we can even text it!

AUTOMATED PARENT REPORTS

In addition to online report access, GradeWatch will automatically generate reports to be mailed to parents or guardians. These reports include detailed information such as the student's missing assignment, the due date and description of assignment.

TRACKING MADE EASY

By using GradeWatch all faculty & admin can easily collaborate to help each individual student be responsible for all assignments in all curriculum areas.

EASY AND TIME SAVING

Training for GradeWatch takes less than 10 minutes. Teachers will spend less than 5 minutes a day inputting data that will drastically increase the efficiency of study halls and intervention periods.

INDIVIDUALIZED INTERVENTION

Catch missing assignments early, before the student falls impossibly behind.

GradeWatch is a web-based student assignment and reporting software that was originally designed to help a school's intervention program.

The idea was to track all students who have missing assignments and hold them accountable by using study hall and intervention time more wisely with the reports generated from GradeWatch.

Using GradeWatch, teachers and administration can collaborate to inform students of their missing or poor quality assignments from all courses and use the list to determine who has intervention study hall and what work they needed to be doing.

We believe our software, if paired with the correct intervention plan, provides an easy and time saving way to hold every student accountable for every assignment.

GradeWatch allows schools to:

1. Determine which students need intervention study hall.
2. Gives a specific list of assignments the student needs to be spending their time on.
3. Provides schools the ability to track assignments and status.
4. Supplies the administrators with an easy way to enforce school policy for missing/poor quality work.
5. Provides a feasible way to inform parents of student progress with emails, texts, online portal, and automated personalized letters.

The number one advantage of our software is how easy it is track hundreds of students and hundreds of assignments. All teachers, administrators, parents, and students can access qualifying assignments, allowing everyone to collaborate to help each student achieve.

SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE

STEP 1: We customize it to fit your individual intervention plan. Furthermore we'll enter in your individual faculty members so they each have their own missing assignment page with only their students on it.

STEP 2: The rest is easy! First each teacher must look through their day's assignments and plug in any students who didn't hand in their assignment, were absent, or turned in poor quality work from that day. (Unlike an SIS you can do it before you grade it.)

STEP 3: Next, reports and parent emails are generated automatically for each student who has a missing or sub quality assignment entered. These reports inform the student & parent of the exact assignment(s) and consequences if not completed.

STEP 4: After the student has served their time (depending on your intervention plan) OR handed in the assignment, the teacher or administrator may remove the missing assignment from list with the click of a button.
